THURSDAY..... NOVEMBER 8, 1860.

Our Capt. Hanson in his speech at the court-house the other night warmly advocated the Douglas platform. He contended that the doctrine of protection to slavery in the territories was thrust upon his party in the last gubernatorial race, without authority of the party; and that the Bell and Douglas men must hereafter unite upon what is substantially the squatter-sovereignty, non-protection doctrine of the "little giant." We wonder if the Captain thought of the zealous advocacy of protection by our friend Jno. M. Harlan? It looked to us like Hanson was striking at Harlan over Josh. Bell's shoulders!

Franklin County—Unofficial

COURT HOUSE.—Bell, 148; Breckinridge, 47; Douglas, 10.

STATE WAREHOUSE.—Bell, 140; Breckinridge, 114; Douglas, 16.

BALD KNOB.—Bell, 80; Breckinridge, 268; Douglas, 4.

BRIDGEPORT.—Breckinridge, 69 majority reported; Douglas, 3.

FORKS OF ELKHORN.—Bell, 111; Breckinridge, 144; Douglas, 3.

PEAK'S MILL.—Bell, 163; Breckinridge, 128; Douglas, 0.

Franklin county gives Breckinridge one hundred and sixteen majority. In 1851 it gave Breckinridge thirty majority, and in 1857 it gave Clay thirty-seven. With these exceptions it has not gone Democratic in fifty years past. It has clung to the fortunes of our glorious leader with unfaltering devotion, and has justly earned the distinction of being the banner Breckinridge county in Kentucky.

Lincoln is elected by the vote of the Northern States, except New Jersey, California, and Oregon. Breckinridge carries every Southern State except two, and also carries the three free States above named. Thus, at least, are the indications at the present writing.

The News.

The telegraphic returns received here last night from the Northern States look decidedly unfavorable to the Democracy. They are from points, however, where we expected heavy losses. We have not seen enough yet to form a clear idea of the result, (in a horn,) but Breckinridge's chances are the best in Bald Knob and we believe he is elected in that precinct "by a scratch!"

Christiansburg precinct, Shelby county gave Breckinridge a majority of 77, the same that Buchanan obtained in 1856.

Hon. W. W. Eaton.

Whatever the result of the election of to-day, we take pleasure in recognizing our high appreciation of the efficient and unselfish service rendered to our cause by the Hon. W. W. Eaton, of Connecticut. He has participated in our cause with great zeal, and we know that his efforts have been rewarded with the most gratifying results.

Mr. Eaton is a representative of the sound Democracy of New England. He is an honorable evidence of the nationality of our party. His principles, as avowed and advocated in Connecticut, find a cordial response here, and would be warmly echoed in the most extreme portions of the community. He speaks here as he spoke in Connecticut, and the Democracy of both localities applaud. Democratic principles receive no coloring from change of latitude, are not affected by climatic changes. Our people, have, in Mr. Eaton, had a fair and honest type of Connecticut Democracy. He is not an obscure member of the party at home, but is its acknowledged leader and exponent, has received its highest honors, and reflects its real and sincere tenets. As such, the Democracy of Kentucky receives him, and hearing him, have given him their unqualified applause. Nor is he alone at home. Nineteen twentieths of the Democrats of Connecticut stand on the very platform of this canvas. Mr. Eaton is but one of thousands, and his words here have been the conviction of thousands of good and tried friends in distant New England. What other political organization in the land can present such conclusive evidences of its nationality.

Mr. Eaton has established for himself a reputation in Kentucky which may well gratify him. He has won the confidence and admiration of an intelligent and generous people. He has their grateful appreciation for his opportune services, and will not be forgotten.

We apprehend that Mr. Eaton's generous aid at this time will bring to him future drafts for his service. So able and eloquent a champion of our cause will be hereafter called upon, and we know he will not fail to respond.

Lexington Statesman,

To DRESS WELL.—Persons who wish to dress comfortably and elegantly, should always deal with a merchant who keeps the best quality and neatest styles of goods—with a man who knows when a garment fits, and how to suit and please the taste of his customers. Such a merchant can be found at No. 4, Masonic Temple, Louisville. M. B. Swain has on hand a superb assortment of summer goods, from which a gentleman can supply his entire wardrobe in the most fashionable style of the season, and at prices which cannot fail to prove satisfactory.

NEW FASHIONED SHOOTING IRONS.—We are requested by GEN. M. D. WEST, Q. M. G., to state that he has some five and six shooters, an improvement on Colt's revolvers, which he invites gentlemen to call and examine, at his office. They are sent to him for sale, and will be sold at lower prices than such articles are usually valued at. Those in want of such articles are invited to call and buy.

Destructive Fire at Columbus.

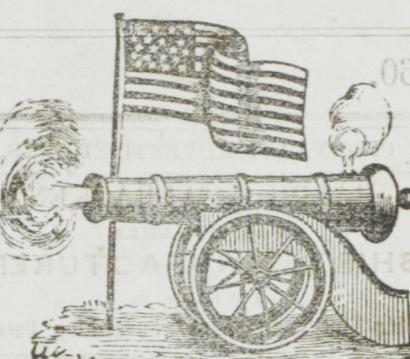

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Wednesday, Nov. 7—A M. Last evening about eight o'clock the Neil House was discovered to be on fire in the upper story.

The fire spread rapidly, owing to the difficulty in getting water so high. The house is now a mass of ruins, and the flames are spreading to the adjoining buildings.

Governor Dennison has telegraphed to the Cincinnati Fire Department for assistance. An extra train, with fire engines, will leave there at two o'clock this morning.

The telegraph wires with one or two exceptions, are torn down.

DEATH OF M. CARNEAL.—The Cincinnati Press of yesterday announced the death in that city on Saturday last of M. Thos. Davis Carnieal, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. M. Carnieal was a native of Kentucky, but, at the age of twenty-one, in 1806, removed to Cincinnati, and about that time married the sister of the wife of Nicolas Longworth, Esq. In his early years he was an officer of the army, but soon after surrendered his commission and entered into mercantile pursuits, in which he was remarkable for his financial ability and excellence of judgment. The deceased had once served a term or two in the Kentucky Legislature, and was the member who introduced a bill for the gradual emancipation of slavery in the State, which will be remembered, was lost by a single vote. He was reared with, and an intimate friend of many of the most distinguished men of Kentucky, among whom were Henry Clay, Governor Morehead, General Dudley, and others, who have associated their names with the political history of the United States.

He had four children, one of whom, Mrs. Warfield, still resides near Lexington, Ky.

of his sons, Thomas D., married the daughter of Governor Foote, of Mississippi, and another, Louis

the daughter of the late distinguished merchant, Josiah Lawrence, Esq.

His second daughter Sallie was for some years a reigning belle, and one of the most beautiful and accomplished ladies of the West or South. She became the wife of a distinguished financier in New Orleans, and died some years ago universally lamented by all who knew her many excellent qualities of mind and heart. In Cincinnati, where the Major owned property to the amount of $200,000 or $300,000, he made many valuable improvements and recently erected several fine blocks of business houses. For several years past he resided in Frankfort, Kentucky, amid the scenes and friends of his youth. Though somewhat eccentric and opinionated, he possessed a large and generous nature, and various estimable qualities that endeared him to a wide circle of friends. He lived longer than the period usually allotted to man, and expired peacefully in the presence of his relatives and friends. His fortune has been variously estimated, but his estate, probably worth $400,000 to $500,000, has been apportioned among his grand children, of whom there are a number.—Lou. Journal.

Proclamation by the Governor.

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY, Executive Department.

In accordance with a time-honored custom, as well as with my own convictions of propriety, I hereby designate Thursday, the 29th instant, as a day of public Thanksgiving and prayer throughout the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and recommend that the people on that day abstain from their secular vocations, close their places of business, and unite in Thanksgiving to Almighty God for the countless blessings we have received at His hands and in supplicating a continuance of His favor.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the Commonwealth to be affixed. Done at Frankfort, this 5th day of November, A. D., 1860, and in the 69th year of Commonwealth.

THE TRI-WEEKLY YEOMAN.

Herschel V. Johnson on the Election of Lincoln.

On Wednesday, the 24th Oct., Herschel V. Johnson, the Douglas candidate for Vice President, made a speech in the city of New York, in which he thus spoke of the election of Lincoln and its consequences. We commend his remarks particularly to those who applaud Douglas's Norfolk speech, and profess to believe that Yancey is guilty of treason and worthy of death for similar declarations. Mr. Johnson said:

THE INEVITABLE CONSEQUENCE OF THE INAUGURATION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY, AND ITS INSTALLATION IN THE GOVERNMENT, WOULD BE THE DISTURBANCE OF THE UNION. The logical sequence of those Republican doctrines was the equality, civil, religious, and political, of the African negro and the American white man. The doctrine meant that, if it meant anything, and he was a hypocrite who denied it. [Applause.] In his country white men believed that they were better than the negro. Those who thought differently were entitled to their sweet-scented opinion. [Laughter and applause.] The Republican doctrine would make the black man eligible to the highest office in the nation, and any man who would deny that this was the logical sequence of Republican doctrines, was either a fool or a knave. [Loud applause.] If the Republicans should succeed, it would be considered proper that their daughters should be led to the marriage altar by Sambo. [Applause, and a voice, "that's so."] The negro vote of Ohio was more than the majority, lately given for the Republican ticket. And, if the negroes had been kept in a subordinate place, as they should be, doubtless Ohio would have cast her vote for the Union and the Constitution. [Applause.] The Republican party announces that all these States must become either free or slave, and now they are to settle the question, and to MEET THIS DECLARATION OF WAR AGAINST THE PROPERTY INTEREST OF FIFTEEN STATES IN THE UNION IN 4,000,000 OF SLAVES, WORTH $5,000,000,000. Had they ever read of a people willing to submit to the destruction of so much property under the form of legislation? ["No, no."] Let them fix their minds upon one article of property in the North, and imagine the South making an effort to destroy it. If the North would submit it would be so mean and cowardly that a dog would not bark at them. [Applause.] And that was the position of the South. THEY WOULD SUFFER EXTERMINATION BEFORE THEY WOULD SUBMIT. [Loud applause.] The Republican party proclaimed a higher law in direct reference to this question of slavery—meaning their convictions of natural right and natural justice; holding that that law was paramount to the Constitution. What was the use of a Constitution if this higher law was to prevail? What sort of President and Cabinet would we have if the higher law should prevail? Our national progress was due to our written Constitution. [Cheers.] Adherence to it was the secret of our success, and every note of discord had been occasioned by a departure from it. [Applause.] What guarantee had they that Mr. Lincoln would not swear to support the Constitution with a mental reservation, provided it does not interfere with the higher law? What would become of the rights of the people and of the States?

There were now nine States which had made it penal for a slave owner to seek to recover a fugitive slave. The Governor of Ohio, and, he believed, of Indiana, had refused to deliver fugitives from justice, who were implicated in the John Brown raid; ["Shame, shame!"] and the highest Court in your State had refused the slaveholder the right of owning his property the moment it touched your soil. IN THE EVENT OF THE SUCCESS OF THE PARTY SUSTAINING THESE PRINCIPLES, WAS IT A BASH ASSERTION TO SAY THAT THE PEOPLE OF THE SOUTH WOULD NOT SUBMIT TO IT? BEFORE GOD AND HIS COUNTRY HE SAID THEY OUGHT NOT, AND WOULD NOT!! [Applause.] Then was the Union in danger? ["Voices—'No!' 'Yes!'"] All that was needed was for New York to do her duty. New York was the battle-ground, and upon her soil let the victory in favor of the Union be achieved. [Applause.] He who saw no danger in the signs of the times was blind. ["That's so."] Had they ever seen the time when there was so little threatening at the South? Such an ominous silence? North Carolina was silent, but might there not be a fixed resolve to take their regiments in their own hands when they find that a sectional party at the North propose to take the reins of Government? [Applause.] But was there temerity on the part of the South to adopt extreme measures? He believed that, upon the election of Lincoln, there would be an appeal for a Southern Convention to form a Southern Confederacy. Then if that was to fail, there would be an appeal for separate State action. South Carolina would probably secede. Alabama had already been pledged through her Legislature to go for secession, and had voted money to defray military expenses. How easy would it be for a few daring men to produce a state of things that would throw this whole country into a state of conduct. He intended to appeal to their patriotism and not to their fears, when he told them he really believed there was danger. The election of Lincoln would cost this country $500,000,000 in the depreciation of property. What would stocks be worth? What would be the value of debts between the two sections? Were these fearful results to take place on the cast of a party die? Let party go to the winds. [Great applause.] Let them be sublimely superior to it, for what was a miserable party triumph, if purchased at the price of our country. [Great applause.]

[Correspondence of the Journal des Debats.]

Garibaldi's Personal Heroism

The most brilliant episode of the action of the 1st of October was the re-capture of the battery at the foot of Mont S. Angelo. When I left Santa Maria, I knew that this battery had been very much disabled in the morning; Garibaldi arrived at nine o'clock, when the enemy was thundering at it with all his strength, because it took him in flank, and was causing him severe loss.

The triple battery courageously resisted the attack, and never slackened fire, when all at once the one situated at the foot of the hill became silent. The Royalists, to the number of 2,500, got round the hill, and rushing upon the gun, spiked five of them, and killed several of the men at their places. Garibaldi, on the San Tamarro side, soon observed the silence of his favorite battery, and an ad-e-camp from General Milwitz soon informed him of the disaster, which would probably have lost him the battle. Garibaldi at once started off, crossed Santa Maria, followed by Medici and his staff, and, collecting what men he could, cried out in a voice which caused all to shudder, "We are going to die, but the Italians must win the day; at all other points we have conquered." Followed by one hundred men, at a rapid pace, Garibaldi, leading the way in a small disabled carriage, went right forward. But just as they got near the Cassino of San Angelo, some Neapolitan Chasseurs who were lying on the ground rose and fell upon them. The coachman drove his horses into a ditch, and formed a barricade of the carriage. Garibaldi jumped up, indignant, and went up to the Chasseurs, shouting, "Viva Italia!" Some of his men coming up at the same time, the enemy became demoralized, and took to flight. Garibaldi was slightly wounded in the stomach, and his trousers were riddled by two or three bullets. "If only I had another pair," he said, and without further remark he continued his march towards a battalion of 150 Hungarians commanded by Gen. Mogyerdy. He pointed to the Neapolitans who were in possession of the battery, and cried out to them, "Forward, my lads, disperse that rabble, you're for me!" This "rabble" consisted of a regiment of the line, a squadron of cavalry, a company of chasseurs and a company of artillery. The Hungarians, without waiting to count the numbers of the adversary, rushed forward and charged with the bayonet. After a contest of twenty minutes, the battery was taken, and once more it poured its store of grape on the Neapolitan troops, who fled in confusion across the field. The Hungarians, in this encounter, had 30 men put hors du combat, the Neapolitans about 200. Garibaldi did not wait to dress his wound, but hurried elsewhere. The day, however, was now won.

PROCLAMATION EXTRAORDINARY.

The following extraordinary proclamation was issued by the Mayor on Saturday, "at the suggestion of several gentlemen of prominent position in our community," and in accordance with an announcement sent to the four quarters of the globe on Friday night, an announcement sent out when we venture to say, not one dozen men in Louisville ever heard or dreamed of anything of the kind! What "prominent gentlemen" suggested this remarkable course to the Mayor, and what motives influenced them to advise such a procedure, are unknown to us, and we presume, will ever be a matter of conjecture only. It is unusual, and we are sure the recommendation is unnecessary. The only effect would be to leave thousands of our people, men and boys, idle on that day, to gather in crowds around the voting places, and thus to interfere with the free exercise of the right of suffrage, rather than to bring out a full and fair vote. It will not take any one man in the city more than ten minutes to cast his vote, and surely it cannot be necessary for the business houses, the stores, the manufactories, and the shops, to close during the day, in order to secure a full vote, and we have not met one business man in the city who does not agree with that there is nothing to call for or to justify the Mayor's proclamation. And what is more remarkable, perhaps, than the recommendation to the "stores, counting-rooms," &c., is the total absence of any special request to the keepers of bars and drinking houses, to close their establishments on that day!

We desire a full and fair vote here to-morrow. Every friend of Louisville desires it. The man who would throw one obloge in the way of such an expression of public sentiment should be deemed and declared an enemy to the Commonwealth, no matter who he may be. We cannot believe, in view of the vital interest, immediate and direct, which Louisville has in having it known to the world that the day of violence and riot and obstructed polls have gone never to return, that any man in its limits it base enough to do ought to prevent a fair election. We look for peace. We expect it. We expect no difficulties, no disturbance, no violence or fraud to-morrow. We have a right to expect none. And we can only regret the action of the Mayor, which is calculated, we fear, to produce unnecessary uneasiness:

Proclamation.

MAJOR'S OFFICE,
LOUISVILLE, NOV. 3, 1860.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: At the suggestion of several gentlemen of prominent position in our community, and in obedience to the dictates of my own convictions of duty, I am induced to issue this Proclamation, and call attention to the solemn duties which are imposed upon every voter on Tuesday next. The momentous issues which are involved; the harsh and angry passions which have been excited; the terrible future that awaits us, if the advocates of aggression upon the rights of property should obtain the ascendancy, and the perils which threaten the peace, and even the perpetuity of the Republic, all combine to render that "a day big with the fate" of the Union and of our civil liberties. In view of the political and religious necessity which should stimulate us all to exertions that may avert the dark catalogue of impending horrors, and in order to allow everybody to devote the day of the Presidential election to the entire service of his country, I most earnestly request that all stores, counting rooms, and other places of business may be closed on Tuesday next during the hours assigned by law for voting. With no disposition to create unnecessary alarm in our community, but most earnestly and deeply impressed with the necessity and importance of bringing out the fullest expression of this conservative and patriotic sentiment of our people, at a time when sectional asperities and geographical parties are imperiling the Union, I sincerely trust that all good citizens, irrespective of their party predilections, will appreciate the motives of this appeal and give it their favorable consideration.

T. H. CRAWFORD, Mayor.

[From the Louisville Journal.]

The undersigned, manufacturers and mechanics of the city of Louisville, though not considering ourselves especially "gentlemen of prominent position," most respectfully beg leave to dissent from the proposal made by His Honor the Mayor in his Proclamation of Monday "to close the places of business in order to promote the peace," believing that it would have the contrary effect. We think, that to close the manufacturing establishment on that day, thus compelling hands, that otherwise would work, to lose the day's work and throwing a large number of unemployed men on the streets and at the polls, would be more calculated to provoke disturbance than to keep good order.

While the employers do not desire to compel any man to work on the day of election, they also do not wish to prevent their doing so by closing their establishments.

It is well known that the employers have always cheerfully accorded their workmen opportunity to vote without deducting anything for the lost time; we therefore think the best method to keep good order in the city on the day of election is to give our operatives their usual employment, and keep our places of business open as usual.

Proclamation.

MAJOR'S OFFICE,
LOUISVILLE, NOV. 5, 1860.

Whereas, Tuesday, the 6th day of November, has been fixed by law for the election of President of this Union, I recommend that all persons engaged in vending intoxicating liquors close their drinking houses and abstain from selling on that day.

T. H. CRAWFORD, Mayor.

[From Washington.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.

The most intense excitement prevails here now touching the Presidential election, but it is wholly untrue that we have any panic among business men. The report appears to have been entirely unfounded, but the rumor still prevails that two or three large firms have made assignments. The public mind is undoubtedly agitated and sensitive, and I am informed, is only kept from actual panic by the hope that New York will vote against Lincoln.

I have an intimation to-day of another movement inside of that of the red-hot fire-eaters, such as Yee, Keitt, and Rett.

This inner movement while it looks to the secession of South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, and Arkansas, immediately on the election of Lincoln, as a foregone conclusion, does not see in that inevitable dissolution of the Federal Union. It regards the removal of all the parts within the range of possibilities, and addresses itself to bringing about that result. For that purpose an address is to be issued to the people of all the States, North and South, inviting them to send delegates to a National Convention, in which the relations of the sections to each other may be fully discussed and placed on a more satisfactory footing, and when amendments to the Constitution may be agreed upon, to be afterwards made according to the prescribed forms.

In the event of the North refusing to take part in this proposed national assemblage, or refusing to place the slavery question on a basis that will be deemed fair and satisfactory to the South, then the whole body of the Southern States is to be formed, and a Southern Confederacy is to be formed. I give the rumor for what it is worth.

From Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 6.—Peterson's Decree cautions the public to refuse five dollar bills on the Western Bank of Philadelphia. Over $5,000 in spurious bills have been received. The notes are well engraved, and are good imitations of the genuine.

From Louisville.

THE following extraordinary proclamation was issued by the Mayor on Saturday, "at the suggestion of several gentlemen of prominent position in our community," and in accordance with an announcement sent to the four quarters of the globe on Friday night, an announcement sent out when we venture to say, not one dozen men in Louisville ever heard or dreamed of anything of the kind! What "prominent gentlemen" suggested this remarkable course to the Mayor, and what motives influenced them to advise such a procedure, are unknown to us, and we presume, will ever be a matter of conjecture only. It is unusual, and we are sure the recommendation is unnecessary. The only effect would be to leave

Vote of the Southern States.

Louisville—Private dispatches say that Louisiana has gone for Breckinridge. Returns from Southern points below Tennessee show the Douglas vote to be quite feeble. The State south of the Tennessee line have probably all gone for Breckinridge.

The Election in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6.—The election is proceeding quietly, and a large vote will be polled. The Breckinridge and Bell men are equally sanguine of carrying the city and State. The Douglass men seem to be polling a large vote. It is thought that many Germans are voting for Lincoln.

From New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The World's Washington correspondent says that Gen. Harney has left to assume the command of the department in consequence of anonymous letters threatening insurrection in Virginia. Gov. Letcher has ordered troops to be ready to move at a moment's notice.

The Times' Washington correspondent says that at the special request of a number of prominent citizens of Georgia, the Government has placed the arsenal at Augusta in possession of the Federal troops, and also that the arsenal at Fayetteville, North Carolina, is to be occupied by a company of cavalry.

Every mother and housekeeper must often act as a family physician in the numerous ills and accidents that occur among children and servants. For many of these cases I have used Davis' Pain Killer, and consider it an indispensable article in the medicine box. In diarrhea it is much used, with great success. For cuts and bruises it is invaluable.—N. Y. Examiner.

DICK'S ACCOUNTANT

AND DISPATCH PATENT.

The Inventor's Claims are acknowledged and protected by the Governments of Canada, the United States, and Great Britain; to all whom it may concern:

What I claim as my invention, is the contrivance of keeping accounts current, of whatever kind, description, or form, and for the purpose of keeping the state of the several accounts standing in a printed or written form, so as to admit of being readily and quickly re-adjusted in any particular part, where an account is to be closed, or carried over to another page or time or the current of business transactions, that, when readjusted in all such parts up to any given date, an impression therefrom taken from the typewritten, in printed form, the state of all the accounts, except the necessary representation of the advances or conclusions, in accordance with the end or ends contemplated in keeping the record; rendering it, in commercial business, a balance sheet of the most compact and perfect character, the details of which may be easily and quickly referred to for verification, wherein it is shown, that the fact or facts to be recorded, may be represented by figures, symbols, dates, or numbers, used either separately or in combination, or in such a way as will indicate the nature as described, and furthermore, but not on the ordinary invention, I also claim the device or contrivance of rendering or transmitting accounts in partial or full statements, when the statement or statements so made are, in the form of a printed or written type, or the arrangements of my invention, be the mode of transmission what it may; but the particular mode of rendering accounts by the use of the Dispatched Machine, constituted of Apron, Movement, Red, and Lever, and the like, will be the best, and the most sense, and also the machine itself, embracing all its forms and modes of operating, as indicated in describing it, either as a simple hand instrument, or as operated by machinery, in connection with the other parts, and based upon the principles of rendering or transmitting accounts substantially the same as those herein claimed, or intended to be claimed. With the claims for the acknowledged and protected invention, I also claim the use to which this absurdity is put, not particularly smugled in any manner; neither bodily nor partially; neither directly nor indirectly; neither explicitly nor symbolically; this ground covers, and nothing more; the absurdity monopoly of this absurdity and nothing else, is all he asks as his claims, rationally read, attest.
